2025-2030

Why are we here?

Uniting and empowering our region to forge a climate resilient, genuine net zero future for all.

Who are we here for?

Our member councils and their communities.

What are our principles?

Efficiency & impact at scale

Maximising financial and other resources by undertaking joint initiatives typically beyond the reach of individual councils whilst supporting members to deliver their strategic objectives.

Collaboration & partnerships

Building strong, enduring partnerships with member councils and regional stakeholders, other greenhouse alliances and all three spheres of government.

Strategic leadership & dedicated resources

Guiding regional climate action with expert thought leadership and dedicated capacity and capability.

Innovation & evidence-base

Using data-driven approaches to pioneer new solutions, inform decision making and measure and report progress.

Where will we focus?

Driving the region to genuine net zero

Spearheading a science-based, 1.5°C aligned decarbonisation pathway and a fair, fast and inclusive transition.

Building climate resilience and adaptive capacity

Enhancing community and infrastructure resilience to climate impacts and facilitating adaptation, particularly for the vulnerable and those at most risk.

Empowering councils and communities

Building collective capacity for climate action through knowledge and information sharing, data-driven resources and shared services.

Driving systemic change

Use our scale, reputation and expertise to undertake evidence-based advocacy to influence policy, funding, and regulations.

How will we measure success?

Outcomes and impact of joint programs and initiatives
Tangible value, efficiency, cost savings, emission reductions
Policy and regulatory change, increased investment and resources
